School Employee Assault Bill Heard

On Thursday, February 17th, the RIFTHP testified in the House Judiciary Committee in support of H7303 by Representative Craven. RIFTHP lobbyist James Parisi testified in person and submitted written testimony (click here). Under current law, if a principal, teacher, or supervisor is assaulted on the job and is absent from work, that person continues to receive full pay and is not charged her/his own leave while out of work. H7303 would extend this requirement to teacher assistants and other school employees, who work directly with students. The RIFTHP argued it was a matter of equity that administrators and teachers get full coverage if absent due to an assault, but that other school employees who interact directly with students receive a workers compensation benefit (not full pay) in the same situation. The Committee held the bill for further study.

RIFTHP Offers Testimony in House Education Committee

The RIFTHP offered testimony on two bills heard in the House Education Committee on Wednesday, February 16th. The RIFTHP offered support to the Climate Literacy Act. The bill, H7275, was introduced by Rep. Courtvriend. It requires RIDE to convene stakeholders who would develop climate-related principles used when curriculum and curricular materials are being established in science, civics and social studies. There are other provisions of the bill related to enhancing climate literacy. RIFTHP lobbyist James Parisi supported the bill, noting that the bill does not create new course requirements but instead infuses existing course requirements with climate studies. He urged the Committee to provide funding and additional employees at the Rhode Island Department of Education in order to complete the work. A coalition of environmental groups, the NEA/RI and the AFL-CIO also supported the bill. The Superintendent's Association raised objections to the bill, arguing that the state cannot keep adding to the curriculum without taking other things out. The Committee voted to hold the bill, and others heard that afternoon, for further study.

The RIFTHP also testified on H7274, a bill by Representative McNamara that would require school committees to notify RIDE whenever a teacher is terminated for cause. RIDE would then maintain the list of terminated teachers that could be accessed by prospective employers. The list would not be subject to the open records act. The RIFTHP has some significant concerns particularly related to the privacy and security of the information. The union offered amendments to ensure that the termination list would not include non-tenured teachers whose contract can be non-renewed without meeting the good and just cause standard. The RIFTHP also sought to extend the requirement to charter school governing boards. Finally, the RIFTHP offered amendments to exempt from the list teachers who are terminated as part of a layoff based on program elimination, reorganization or fiscal exigency. We also oppose adding a name to the list while a termination is being adjudicated.

Additional RIFTHP Priorities Introduced

S2319 would cap a district expenditure on charter tuition at 9% of a school budget, or 23% for districts under a state takeover.
